

Automated Trading Seminar

July 12th
6.00pm - 8.00pm

80 Coleman Street
London
EC2R 5BJ

Discipline, or lack of discipline, is probably the number one reason traders fail to make money and after all, we are all human and prone to emotion, which is, more often than not, the catalyst for poor and irrational trading decisions. The problem is that discipline is not always easily learnt, and certainly not overnight ! But there is an overnight solution to adhering to a trading strategy... and that is 'Automated Trading'.

Few traders actually want to be tied to their screens day in, day out, but until recently it has not been possible to automate your strategy and automate its execution.

But now we are seeing an exodus of City traders to trade from their homes or from local trading centres being set up nearby. And it is the latest technology that enables these city professionals to trade with the same edge that they had sitting in their multi-million pound dealing rooms in the City:

- Technology including professional direct market access available over the internet using current home pc specifications.
- Technology allowing you to write your own trading systems resulting in automated signal generation.
- Technology allowing you to execute those signals automatically.

Join us at our free seminar to learn more about how you can utilise this cutting-edge technology to automate the whole 'decision making' through to 'execution' process.

We will show you:

1. How to get started setting up your strategy for automated signal generation, including the different software options.
2. How to set up your strategy to trade direct from a chart.
3. How to automate the execution of your signals.

After all, there is no point automating your signals if you don't follow them; automatic execution being the best way to remain disciplined.

Places are limited, so to register and ensure your free place, please return to the seminar page and fill in your registration details.
